

I am opposed to weakening the No Call list. Even with the No Call list we get a number of telemarketing calls every day. If bankers want to communicate with people who use their services, I think they should send letters or enclosures with bank statements.